DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

The drawings filed on January 17, 2001 are acceptable.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors. For examination purposes, the claims will be given the broadest reasonable interpretation.

Claims 17-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The phrases "the second-named displaying" and "the first-named displaying" lack antecedent bases.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S.

Patent No. 6,167,383 to Henson. Regarding claims 1 and 6, Henson discloses a method and system comprising:

- at a manufacturer server the appearance specification which are to be reflected on appearance of a prospective custom-made product having a plurality of candidates; storing interior specifications information about interior specification of the custom-made product (see at least col. 4, lines 36-52; col. 5, lines 29-54; col. 6, lines 5-43; col. 7, lines 39-56; Figures 3-6) and
- at the customer terminal displaying a first menu containing the appearance image information about the appearance specification of all candidates for selection by a customer; and selecting a candidate of the appearance specification from the first menu on the display section; and displaying a second menu containing all kinds of the interior specifications information corresponding to the selected of the appearance specification for selection by the customer (see at least col. 4, lines 53-66; col. 5, line 66 – col. 6, line 6; col. 6, lines 18-43; Figures 3-6).

Regarding claims 2-5, 7-9, 11-13, 15, and 17-20, Henson discloses the second menu contains the kinds of the interior specification and all the candidates for each kind; delivery information about an estimated delivery term for every candidate is displayed; confirmation page containing the appearance image information of the prospective menu containing appearance image information of a prospective custom-made product for appearance specifications which are to be reflected on appearance of the prospective custom-made product and have a plurality of candidates, the appearance image information of the individual candidate being received from the manufacturer server for selection from the displayed first menu by a customer; and the display section displays a second menu containing interior specification information about the prospective custom-made product, the interior specifications information corresponding to the selected candidate of the appearance specifications and being received from the manufacturer server for selection in the second menu by the customer. (See at least col. 4, lines 53-66; col. 5, line 66 – col. 6, line 6; col. 6, lines 18-43; Figures 3-6)

Regarding claim 16, Henson discloses a method of selecting specifications of a custom-made product, comprising: transmitting, from a manufacturer server to a customer terminal, appearance image information of a prospective custom-made product for appearance specifications which are to be reflected on appearance of the prospective custom-made product and have a plurality of candidates, and displaying, on a display section of the customer terminal, a first menu containing the appearance specifications for every candidate for selection in the first menu by a customer; selecting one candidate from all the candidates of the appearance specifications in the first menu display on the display section; transmitting, from the manufacturer server to the customer terminal, various kinds of interior specifications information about interior specifications of the prospective custom-made product, and displaying, on the display of the customer, a second menu containing all kinds of the interior specifications information corresponding to the selected candidate of the appearance specifications for selection in the second menu by the customer; and selecting desired kinds of the interior specifications from the second menu on the display section by the customer as those of the prospective interior specifications. (See at least summary; col. 4, lines 26-54; col. 5, lines 29-54; col. 6, lines 5-43; col. 7, lines 39-56; col. 5, line 66 – col. 6, line 6; Figures 3-6)

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

U.S. Patent No. 6,083,267 to Motomiya et al. discloses a system and a method for designing an accessory.

U.S. Patent no. 6,414,693 to Berger et al. discloses a system and method for customizing articles on a computer-based display which provides a supplier database and remote client computer.

PCT World Publication 98/15908 to Hrasaki et al. (English translation) discloses a watch design preparation system based on a digital information processing technique for making a watchmaker directly manufacture an original design product matched with a consumer preference.
